Good day Sharisse! Your 2 devices are on the way. You will notice we have two styles of cases for the devices so that's why the ones included in the shipment look different from each other. But both devices are identical in every other way. Please print and sign the agreement. I created a word doc just in case you needed to add or remove your names as authorized agent of FLC. The tracking number is included on the doc. Let us know when they arrive and I'll connect you with our tech guru Mathew. Set up and use is fairly simple as the Caption Companion is designed and set up for captions only. We look forward to getting feedback from the students needing the service. Have a great week!

Good day Sharisse!

Sorry for the delayed response. We just started the business plan and modeling for the device approx three months ago. Class Act has exciting news for it's customers that need on-site captioning...but cannot find service providers over the last 4-6 years and especially during and after covid. The availability of in-person CART services in the greater Sacramento areas seems to have evaporated. It became frustrating to have many of our contracts request this service and only be able to offer a remote solution via a live captioner. Unfortunately, the greatest needs happen to be within our class rooms. Our colleges and k-12's are not getting their needs met...and so the Caption Companion was our version of "Answer". This device can save our customers thousands upon thousands of dollars a year on CART services in general. Yes, there are instances whereas a live captioner is a must...but we've found more instances whereas the Caption Companion is a perfect fit.

We've partnered with experts in the field of not only CART captioning and ASL professionals but those that also have the technical savvy to integrate the necessary hardware and software that builds our vision of a professional grade, on-demand captioning device...directly to the end user. Each device goes through a rigorous overhaul in order to bring the end user a simple, straightforward, and streamlined captioning experience that just does not exist today.

Class Act is offering FLC use of the Caption Companion for a full week...at no charge. If after one week you do not feel it's a good fit for your current captioning needs...then we'll schedule a day to pick up the device. We feel this would be a win win for all parties. Class Act will get to beta test the Caption Companion to determine if additional support services may be needed down the road. FLC benefits from 100% technical support at no cost.

Let us know if you're interested in trying out the Caption Companion and we'll a device delivered at your convenience. Best wishes!

Dear Blair,

Thank you for the detailed information on the new device! I shared the information with our program director and dean, as well as the student needing immediate support. I am hoping to get back to you soon with FLC's decision.

Kind regards,

Sharisse

Good day Sharisse,

We're still working on fancier product details but here's what we have right now. We're very excited about this new device for "on-demand and "on the go" captioning. Let me know what you think and if you want to try it out :-)

In essence it's a portable 8" device (much smaller than most tablets) with good battery life that offers unlimited accurate auto-captioning out of the box with no account, no signup, no subscription, and no internet connection required. Custom words are supported. It includes a Bluetooth lapel mic for higher accuracy when the person speaking is not right next to the tablet. (Additional accessories can be purchased separately such as custom adapters for direct audio input from external sources like PA systems or FM systems, and a custom HDMI cable for displaying captions on larger screens.) The tablet can also be used in a more stationary manner such as at an employee's desk. It can be connected to the computer so that it auto-captions any and all audio coming out of the computer (meetings, calls, videos, podcasts, etc).

The cost of the device is $1299. As you can see...you'll almost spend this in 1 week of services and within 2 weeks it's completely paid for itself. Unlike ASL, the captioning industry is moving totally into the remote space as technology advances. Today, we're seeing hourly rates of cart providers as high as $150-$200 per hour and we have recognized this is not sustainable. If you're interested and would like a demo or just have questions or concerns feel free to contact me and we'll set up a conference call with the developer.
